Medical school: NYU Grossman Long Island School of Medicine

Personal interests: playing and watching various sports, traveling, spending time with friends and family

Why I chose NYU Grossman Long Island School of Medicine: "The first thing that drew me to this program was the incredible faculty and host of residents. The high surgical volume, combined with the small size of our program, ensures that residents receive the best surgical training possible. The size of our program also affords us the opportunity to pursue our individualized research interests."

Third Year Resident

Katharine Hodgen, MD

Hometown: Northport, New York

Undergraduate school: Georgetown University

Medical school: New York Medical College

Clinical interests: female pelvic medicine and reconstructive surgery, pediatric urology, male infertility, andrology, endourology

Personal interests: triathlons, pickle ball, cooking Mediterranean-inspired recipes

Why I chose NYU Grossman Long Island School of Medicine: "There is a sense of excitement that emanates from the urology department. The dedication of the faculty to resident education is exceptional. I instantly knew that I would be part of a close-knit team and that my clinical and research interests would be supported. I was drawn to the program's strong surgical training and case diversity, as well as the high operative volume and one-on-one mentorship with faculty."

Second Year Resident

Corey Maxwell Efros, MD

Hometown: Roslyn, NY

Undergraduate school: University of Michigan

Medical School: New York Medical College

Clinical interests: unsure, opened to everything

Personal interests: New York Knicks, cooking, gardening, and the stock market

Why I chose NYU Grossman Long Island School of Medicine: I chose NYU-LI for two key reasons: the sense of family and the excellent training.
